

HEALING WITH TATTOO

CAN YOU HELP OTHERS HEAL WITH YOUR STORY?

If you or someone you know has battled breast cancer, chances are you can!

The Jody Stoski Paramedical Tattoo academy is an online training platform for PMU artists to learn how to perform paramedical tattoo procedures.

Jody has been offering 3D areola and nipple tattoos for over a decade, perfecting her own unique technique that she wants to share with others. She knows what breast cancer survivors go through, and she wants to help even more women heal.

She's looking to collect different stories that can help her students understand the emotional journey breast cancer patients and their families endure. Jody believes this is a key for offering a safe space for clients to undergo 3D areola procedures and heal after their trauma.

“In sickness and in health, I believe that when you look good, you really do feel better. Giving people confidence in their own skin is what drives me to be the best, and to always keep learning in the paramedical tattoo industry.”

Stories can be shared through video or audio recordings taken by you, or Jody's marketing team. You may also share your story through a phone interview or written submission.

Whatever you're comfortable with, there is power in your words and experience.
