

TRANSITIONING WITH TATTOO

CAN YOUR STORY HELP STRENGTHEN OTHERS?

We would like to learn more about the challenges trans men and women face related to their bodies.

The Jody Stoski Paramedical Tattoo academy is an online training platform for PMU artists to learn how to perform paramedical tattoo procedures.

Jody has been offering 3D areola and nipple tattoos and scar camouflage for over a decade, perfecting her own unique technique that she wants to share with others. Jody completes top surgeries by camouflaging scarring and/or adding pigment to areolas.

She's currently working on a new course specifically about areolas. She's looking to collect different stories that can help her students understand the journey of transitioning. Jody believes this is a key for offering a safe space for clients to undergo 3D areola procedures.

"I believe that when you look good, you really do feel better. Giving people confidence in their own skin is what drives me to be the best, and to always keep learning in the paramedical tattoo industry."

Stories can be shared through video or audio recordings taken by you, or Jody's marketing team. You may also share your story through a phone interview or written submission.
